Coronavirus Update

Statement for customer- and supplier communication

We are still keeping a close eye on how the coronavirus pandemic is currently unfolding in all regions. Röhm responded early on, comprehensively and consistently during the crisis, immediately implementing all measures that were necessary. These precautions are paying off.

We have been and still are able to reliably supply our customers with the products they need throughout the crisis. The positive cooperative relationship we nurture with the local authorities mean that both raw material deliveries and supplies are guaranteed at present.

Since the disease first broke out, a team of Röhm experts has been continuously analyzing and assessing the current situation. What's more, Röhm decided on and immediately implemented appropriate measures to safeguard our employees.

Although the number of new cases is declining in some regions, we are still taking the situation very seriously, and can assure you that we are preparing intensively for all possible scenarios. Please understand that, since the situation is continuously changing, we cannot predict what impact the coronavirus will have on future circumstances.
